ORLANDO BOSCH AVILA was convicted in 1968 on charges of ship bombings, conspiracy and extortion. He was released on parole 12/15/72, after which an atmosphere of terrorism had been created in the Miami area. It was part of his modus operandi in 1968 to write mysterious letters under the name "ERNESTO," claiming credit for bombings and other acts of violence.

LUIS NORBERTO TORNES GARCIA is the former head of the secret anti-communist army, a small terrorist group in Miami. MM 1550-ES has advised that TORNES has been involved in bombings and extortions in the past. He was the publisher of "Impacto," a Spanish-language newspaper which recently closed business. He is an avowed enemy of MAX LESNICK and most of the other victims in this case. Several years ago TORNES and ATON CONSTANZO accused each other of responsibility for the bombing of Miami Radio Station WQRA. It is, therefore, possible that he might place CONSTANZO's name at the bottom of a threatening letter as the author.
